

MANILA

Manila is a bustling city that is full of contrasts. Alongside the remaining pieces of Spanish colonial architecture are contemporary office buildings and condominium developments. Businessmen conduct transactions in Makati, consumers peruse the stalls in Chinatown.

Manila offers:

- Numerous shopping venues from the glittering designer shops of Asia's largest mall to the bargain stalls of Chinatown.
- Diverse nightlife with entertainment districts full of restaurants, karaoke bars, nightclubs and discos of every description.
- Interesting historical sites including Intramuros, the Spanish fort dating from the 1600's, and Corregidor where one of WWII's greatest struggles took place.
- A variety of local and international cuisine to tempt and satisfy any palate.

A day in Manila

- Visit Makati City financial district, and nearby is Forbes Park, fittingly dubbed as "Millionaires' Row."
- Next is the historic Rizal Park where the remains of the Philippines' national hero, Dr. Jose Rizal, lie within the Monument.
- Then to the walled city of Intramuros, the oldest structure in the country, which dates back to 1571.
- After is Fort Santiago which served as headquarters of the military for the Spanish, American and Japanese colonizers until its destruction in 1945.
- Finally drop off at Mall of Asia.
